New GC harbor clears congressional hurdle

By Robbi Courtaway
and Bob Slate
Staff writers

ST. LOUIS — A St. Louis Harbor project bill that includes a new harbor in Granite City has received a new lease on life from Congress.

The City of St. Louis has been notified by U.S. Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., House majority leader, that a U.S. House and Senate Conference Committee has appropriated $200,000 in the 1991 fiscal year for the St. Louis Harbor project, Mayor Vincent C. Schoemehl Jr. said.

The legislation also authorizes construction of a harbor along the east bank of the Chain of Rocks Canal in the Tri-City Regional Port District area, said Nick Nichols, operations manager of the City of St. Louis Port Authority.

The new harbor would be located about one mile north of the present Tri-City Port harbor.

Bob Wydra, Tri-City Port executive director, said Monday that the harbor project was initiated by the Corps of Engineers "about nine years ago, and the agency decided that the Chain of Rocks Canal was the best location for a new harbor to alleviate traffic problems in the busy waterway."

Wydra said the project includes a "6,900-foot cut in the canal, one mile north of the existing harbor." He said he was not sure what portion of the congressional appropriation would be spent on the canal-area project. He said that would be determined by the Corps of Engineers.

The project is "beyond the study stage," Wydra said, and "over one million dollars has already been spent on the planning and design" aspects. Also involved in the pending legislation is the Corps of Engineers' planning, engineering and design of a sediment control structure at St. Louis' municipal river terminal.

municipal river terminal.

The city terminal, located two miles north of the Gateway Arch on the Mississippi River's west bank, has two public docks, warehouses and storage to accommodate general cargo of great tonnage, Nichols said.

Unfortunately, silt and sediment that are a natural part of the river flow and tend to build up around the terminal, which means the dock area has to be dredged or even closed during low-water periods, he said.

The silt can't be stopped, but a sediment control structure would keep debris moving so that barges may reach the docks at all times, Nichols said. When loaded, barges are about nine feet deep.

"The old Mississippi River keeps moving on down," Nichols said. "This will assist in the movement of the sedimentation."

The harbor project had received an appropriation of $600,000 in 1986 and was scheduled to receive $425,000 in 1986, said Dan Slickman, press secretary to Schoemehl.

But the project has been on hold since the 1985 appropriation because Congress did not approve additional funding to continue the study and begin engineering work.

"It's a problem that's been there for a long time," Slickman said. "This is a big step forward."

Although monies are tight, members of Congress recognized the need for the project, said Gephardt, who sought funds to restart the program.

The overall economic-impact arguments prevailed, and the committee saw the wisdom of providing a facility for the St. Louis area that will allow the efficient loading and unloading of commodities at the St. Louis Municipal Dock, which is the city's primary facility for receiving grain, coal and other items," Gephardt said in a statement.

Truck's driver did job too well in Volvo ad

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

PONTOON BEACH — Fred Shafer knows tough cars.

Shafer, owner of Bearfoot Inc. in Pontoon Beach, is the proud owner of a "monster" truck, aptly named "Bearfoot." The truck was recently featured in a Volvo commercial that went awry when Shafer did his job too well.

In the controversial Volvo spot, "Bearfoot" is shown crushing a row of competitors' vehicles, but unable to smash the Volvo. The idea, from the point of view of the advertising agency hired by Volvo, was to show how well the Volvo stood up to the monster truck's punishment.

But according to Shafer, the commercial required about 40 takes and three Volvos to get it right.

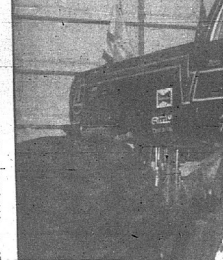

Shafer said, "The first time I drove over the cars, I mashed the Volvo more than they cared to show. So I kept going back and forth over the pile, crushing them down farther each time."

"When they replaced the crushed Volvo with a new one, they braced it with wood around the windshield. I ran over it a few times, too. But (the ad agency) was still unhappy."

"When I finally ran over the third Volvo, it was kind of like hitting a brick wall. It tore up part of the bottom of my truck."

"When I got out, I took a peek at the Volvo and noticed some abnormal bracing. I guess it was like 4-inch-channel iron reinforcements."

Shafer said that, in addition to television, the ad was featured in magazines, such as Forbes and Sports Illustrated, and was "good exposure for me."

BEARFOOT, a monster 4x4 truck owned by Fred Shafer of Pontoon Beach.

But evidently he was not supposed to know about the reinforcements. When word got out, Volvo fired the advertising agency in charge of the project, and hired a different production company to finish editing the film.

Shafer says he heard from the attorneys of the original production company, but "I was paid to crush the cars, and it was good exposure... I guess I did too good a job, but I didn't see anything wrong with it," he said.

Because word got out about the reinforcements, the commercial has been pulled from the air. It can be seen on newscasts exposing the deception more often than in actual ads.

The monster truck craze was begun in the late 1970s, largely due to the popularity of the granddaddy of the monsters, "Bigfoot," of St. Charles, Mo.

Shafer says the most popular feature of the trucks, at least as far as fans are concerned, is their ability to drive right over a pile of automobiles, crushing them like a carton of eggs found in the bottom of a poorly bagged sack of groceries.

Children ages three to 93 have been known to yell themselves hoarse at the exhibitions.

"Bearfoot," a 1990 Chevrolet 4x4 pickup, has been seen in movies, magazine ads, and a ZZ Top music video.

Shafer found the Volvo experience memorable, but for his leisure driving, he'll stick with his personal favorite — a Cadillac.

More firms sue yellow pages

By David Migoya
Staff writer

METRO EAST — Nearly 200 businesses throughout the Metro East area filed $200 million in lawsuits Friday against the publishers of the nation's largest market of yellow pages.

They claim that the firm bilked them out of advertising dollars for nearly 15 years.

The lawsuits were filed almost five months after to other businesses filed a $10.25 million lawsuit against Donnelley Directory, publishers of the Ameritech PagesPlus, and Illinois Bell.

On Monday, Donnelley announced it was offering rebates to businesses that advertised in the East St. Louis directory from 1975-1985.

According to a company spokesman, more than 7,000 rebate checks already have been sent to customers making a claim.

The spokesman, who refused to use his name, could not say how much money may be involved in the rebate campaign.

"This good-will rebate is a response to reported confusion among some advertisers regarding past directory coverage," said Dick Boulton, vice president of communications at Donnelley.

In a joint statement released Monday, Ameritech and Donnelley said advertisers "under the impression the East St. Louis book was distributed to a larger portion of Fairview Heights than was actually the case" prior to 1986 may have suffered "from what may have been poor communication on our part."

Belleville attorney Ray Carr, who represents the businesses, could not be reached for comment Monday about Donnelley's actions.

The latest businesses to file lawsuits Friday were gathered into groups of 20 and logged as 10 separate lawsuits filed in the lawsuits.

Plaintiffs include St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville, Southern Illinois Health Care Foundation in Centerville, John Novotny Chevrolet in Granite City, Pantera's Pizza Corporation, Affenberg Ford in Belleville, Centerville Township Hospital and the Animal Hospital of O'Fallon.

According to the suit, the businesses claim they were misled by sales representatives into advertising in both the East St. Louis and Belleville directories. (See YELLOW PAGES, Page 10A)

The 'Real' Thanksgiving Blessings In St. Louis

Bow your heads, St. Louis. It is time to give thanks. We'll skip right over all the traditional stuff we're all thankful for: Home, health, family, freedom, that kind of thing. Anyone can figure that out.

Our mission is to give thanks for the kinds of stuff people don't usually think about at Thanksgiving. Virvius Jones, for instance.

When's the last time you said thanks for Virvius Jones? When did you last bow your head and murmur, "Thank you, Lord, for a city controller who keeps things all stirred up, providing hours of entertaining reading about City Hall."

He called attention to one real problem, the fact that minorities weren't getting their fair share of city contracts. And when there weren't real problems to worry about, he cooked up phony ones. The result is there's never a dull day at City Hall, a fact for which journalists and broadcasters should be profoundly grateful.

And I am.

And what of county residents? Have you given thanks that the elections are over, that you don't have to watch and hear that endless procession of campaign commercials? Do you miss those pigs slopping in the trough, those snide voices sneering at honorable men and women?

And how about the folks in St. Charles County—have you said thanks for the blessings of living in the only place in the United States where a man can be a rabies control officer (i.e., dog catcher) one day and presiding judge of the county court the next? I bet not.

You folks in Jefferson County, don't laugh. Have you taken a moment to realize the blessings of living in a place where darn near all the politicians in the county are related to each other? Think of the convenience.

Give thanks to the Founding Fathers, who in their wisdom decreed that Thanksgiving would fall just a few weeks after the election, so we'd all have a chance to express our gratitude that it was over.

We should not forget to remember the brave men and women who run the highway departments in the bistate area. Thanks to them, we can sit in endless lines of traffic waiting to cross a bridge or enter a freeway interchange. That is quality personal time for which we should be eternally grateful, unless of course, you happen to be driving in rain full of kids or trying to find a bathroom, or worse still, both.

And those of you stuck in traffic while trying to get to Lambert Field—have you considered how lucky you are? Every moment you spend in traffic is a minute you don't have to spend trying to follow the great new signs at Lambert, or trying to find a place to park.

You sports fans, have you said thanks for Dave McNally and Andy Messersmith lately? They were the first two baseball players to become free agents, thus insuring that our winters would never be dull. What did we do with our time when we couldn't worry about whether Vince Coleman would get that $3 million contract to which we all know he's entitled?

And how about the fact that a baseball game would be incomplete without some guy parading around in a mascot suit. Without the Chicken, there would be no Fredbird, a fact worth considering before you carve your bird.

Be grateful for the cautious approach taken by the St. Louis Cardinals to revamping a team that finished in last place. Sure, they could make a lot of deals, spend a lot of money, but then we might have to worry about baseball next September instead of wondering when hockey season would start. Those folks with the Cardinals, they know when to say when.

Be humble that we live in a city that can have numbing disputes about airports on both sides of the river; a city that can be racing to see which doesn't get built first, a new arena or a new stadium; a city that can save ugly old empty warehouses just in case somebody might want them someday; a city where we can hear Dennis Bulloch's diaries read to us on the 10 o'clock news without ever quite knowing why; a city that can sit on an earthquake area for 250 years and not worry a whit about it until an old man from New Mexico says "December 3" and sends us into apoplexy; a city that will stamp out smoking in public schools where there are guns and drugs stuffed into lockers. Smoking, you see, is dangerous.

It's quite a thing to live in St. Louis, and we should all be grateful—and continue to be grateful until we get it right.

Stolen Olds destroyed

A car stolen in Granite City was recovered after it had been destroyed by fire in St. Louis County, it was reported Nov. 16.

Robert A. Chastain of the 2400 block of Edison Avenue reported at 10:07 p.m. that his 1988 Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme had been stolen from outside a residence near 23rd Street and Cleveland Boulevard while he was visiting a friend for about 10 minutes.

The keys were in the ignition and the engine was running, he said.

Chastain said that while he was inside the dwelling, he looked out of a window and saw his white-over-grey sedan going west on 23rd Street. He was unable to see the occupants.

Local authorities received a phone call from a St. Louis County police officer, who reported a vehicle matching the description of the stolen car had been recovered at Strodman Road and Columbia Bottoms Road, north of the Interstate 270 bridge across the Mississippi River.

The car had been destroyed by fire. The only items missing from the vehicle appeared to be the two rear tires and wheels.

Briefcase, check taken

John Aubuchon of the 2200 block of Washington Avenue told police that between 6 p.m. Nov. 9 and 12:45 p.m. Nov. 10 someone entered his pickup truck and took a black vinyl briefcase containing papers and a $600 check. The vehicle was parked on the street in front of Aubuchon's residence. Several of the papers were later recovered from a trash dumpster in the 2200 block of Iowa Street.

Tree-pruning guide available from national tree organization

NEBRASKA CITY, NEB. — A popular time to prune trees is during the winter dormancy period, and a free booklet is available from the National Arbor Day Foundation to show how to do the trimming.

The illustrated, easy-to-follow guide, "How to Prune Young Shade Trees," has been prepared for homeowners.

How a tree is pruned in its first few years of life will affect its shape, its strength, and even its life span.

The guide includes step-by-step illustrations showing how proper pruning in the early years of a tree's life can save money in the long run and result in safer, more beautiful, easy-to-maintain trees.

The booklet is filled with illustrations showing readers how to make a pruning cut — how to prune for desired form — how to strengthen their tree by removing certain branches — how to maintain the tree's health by removing trouble spots — and when to leave temporary lower branches and when to cut them.

Those who wish to obtain the booklet may send their name and address to How To Prune, National Arbor Day Foundation, Nebraska City, NE 68410.

Dr. Naseer is elected chief of staff at Medical Center

GRANITE CITY — Dr. Riaz Naseer was elected chief of staff at St. Elizabeth Medical Center by the medical center's physicians at the October general staff meeting.

He will be filling the position left by former chief of staff Dr. Bernard S. Loitman, who recently announced his retirement.

"St. Elizabeth Medical Center is an excellent example of progress and growth," Naseer said. "This institution has gradually upgraded its level from primary care to secondary care and is working as a liaison for referral to tertiary care centers."

Members of the medical staff also elected Dr. Lawrence Harmon, president-elect, and Dr. Syed Ali, secretary-treasurer.

"The members of the board of directors have always been enthusiastically appreciative of what the physicians have done to enhance quality care at St. Elizabeth Medical Center," said Sister Mary Thomas, SEMC chairman of the board. "We feel this will continue under the able guidance of our new officers of the medical staff."

Naseer said in his address to the medical staff that he would like to see a progressive pediatric program in this area. He was also pleased with the progress that has been accomplished so far.

"St. Elizabeth has made excellent additions in our new physicians and programs," Naseer said. "All of these changes have been brought about during these hard days of cost-containment."

Naseer received his medical degree at the Dow Medical School in Karachi, Pakistan. He interned at Deaconess Hospital in St. Louis, held a fellowship in neurology at Barnes and Children's hospitals and served as assistant professor of clinical neurology at St. Louis University. He is board-certified in neurology.

A member of the SEMC medical staff since 1979, Naseer has served as medical director for the Skilled Nursing Unit since 1985. His professional memberships include the St. Louis Medical Society and the American Academy of Neurology.

President-elect Harmon, a doctor of internal medicine and a 10-year veteran of SEMC received his medical degree from St. Louis University School of Medicine in 1974. He was born and raised in Granite City.

His professional memberships include the Illinois State Medical Society, the American Medical Association and the American Society of Internal Medicine. He is board-certified in the practice of internal medicine.

Ali specializes in neurology. He received his medical degree at the Dow Medical School in

The board also approved Dr. William Popovic as chief of medicine, replacing Naseer, and Dr. Izz Jatala as chief of neuro-psychiatry.

Dr. Popovic, a medical oncologist/hematologist, received his medical training at St. Louis University School of Medicine. He has been at SEMC since 1981. Dr. Jatala, a psychiatrist, has been a member of SEMC's medical staff since 1980. He received his medical training at Nishtar Medical College.

Other physicians currently serving as chiefs of staff include:

Thanksgiving dinner conversations, then and now, with our distant relatives

By Terry Dean
Staff writer

I have never enjoyed visiting a distant relative on Thanksgiving. The conversation is usually as bland as an over-cooked turkey.

"So... what do you do?" my distant uncle asks.

"I write for a newspaper," I reply.

"Really? Well, we've got one of those."

"A newspaper?"

"Well, sure Martha! Go get that newspaper when I wanna show it to... uh... to..."

"Terry?"

"Well, sure. That's right."

From that point, the conversation snowballs downhill. After hearing about the next-door neighbor's boy and how he let the high school football team down — re-living each and every play of the season, even though this distant uncle "never actually went to a game" — I try to steer the discussion in a new, more risqué direction.

"So, what do you do, Uncle... uh... Uncle..."

"Bob?"

"That's right, Uncle Bob."

"I'm a telephone repairman."

"Really? We've got three of those at home."

"Telephones?"

"Yes sir! There's even more of those phones where I work."

"At that newspaper?"

"Yeah, in St. Louis."

"Missouri, right?"

"There you go."

Other than having discussion topics jotted on your sleeve, timing is the most important concern when visiting on Thanksgiving. It's important to arrive five minutes before dinner, armed with a compelling reason for leaving 45 minutes later.

"I'm really sorry we have to rush off, but the motel has this afternoon bed-check policy. I casually mention as the turkey is being served.

"We've got one of those."

"A policy?"

"No. A bed. Martha? Go get that bed, I want to show it to."

"Can it get any worse?"

Sure. Imagine what that first Thanksgiving was like for the pilgrims and the Indians.

"So, what do you do?" Bob Pilgrim asks.

"Well, I hunt, mostly," Fred Indian replies.

"Ah, hunt. That's... good."

"Yeah, the braves, and I, we go out and stalk deer and wild turkeys and — well, you know."

"Hey, we've got one of those."

"A wild turkey?"

"No, a stalk. The corn crop was pretty bad this year. Only one stalk came up. Martha? Go get that stalk; I want to show it to."

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"Fred?"

"That's it."

Meanwhile, over at the kettle, Martha has been getting to know her new Indian friend.

"I just love your deerskin dress," Martha Pilgrim says.

"Thank you."

"Where ever did you find it?"

"On a deer."

"That's what I was going to say, but I was afraid I would sound..."

"Foolish?"

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

And while we're stuck in the imagining mode, let's reflect on how it went as the pilgrim and Indian ladies introduced themselves to one another.

"Hello, I'm Martha — Martha Pilgrim."

"Hi-ya, My Name is Shimmering Oar."

"Oh, isn't that pretty. That's Norwegian, isn't it?"

"No, it's... American."

"Amer — Why, listen to you!"

"My husband is Screaming Dog."

"Oh, you don't have to tell me. Men can be awfully demanding."

"No. That's his name, Screaming Dog."

"Well, of course it is."

"Oh, so it may not have been that bad. But just as awful as spending Thanksgiving Day with distant relatives, you've got to figure that the first Thanksgiving was a turkey, too."

Celebrities sell Old Newsboys Day editions

(John Conroy photo)

MARY PHELAN, a reporter for KMOV-TV (Channel 4), and G. Duncan Bauman, chairman of the Suburban Journals' 1990 Old Newsboys Day, on Thursday discussed tips for peddling Old Newsboys Day editions outside Channel 4's offices at Market and Fourth streets. Also helping raise money for local children's charities through the sale of the annual editions are, from left in background, Al Holzer, Channel 4 news director; Thomas E. Rice, president and chief executive officer of the Suburban Journals; and Channel 4 sports anchor Zip Rzeppa.

KMOX RADIO personality Charles Brennan, right, helps raise money for local children's charities by selling an Old Newsboys edition of the Suburban Journals to G. Duncan Bauman, chairman of the Suburban Journals' 1990 Old Newsboys Day. Brennan, who along with Journal columnist Kevin Horrigan hosts "The Morning Meeting" on KMOX, sold the papers outside the Marriott Pavilion Hotel in downtown St. Louis.

What should earthquake survival kit contain? Many items

By Kevin Foster
Staff writer

Emergency Services and Disaster Agency officials say a good earthquake survival kit should contain many items:

- A flashlight, a portable radio, and fresh batteries for the previous two items.
- A first-aid guide and kit.
- A fire extinguisher capable of putting out grease, electrical and gas fires.
- A large supply of fresh water (stored in sturdy plastic bottles), non-perishable ready-to-eat foods, an adjustable wrench for turning off gas and water.
- A whistle, an emergency signal mirror, candles, waterproof matches, roadside flares, blankets, a tent.

• All-weather ponchos with hoods, dust masks, sanitation bags, scissors, nylon cord or rope, a utility knife, a can opener, cups and other utensils.

• Towelettes, soap, toilet paper, sanitary napkins, tampons, toothbrushes, toothpaste.

• Leather work gloves, water storage carriers, water purification tablets.

• A folding shovel, a pry bar, safety goggles, duct tape and a waterproof document bag.

• A small portable generator can provide a safe source of lighting, cooking and refrigeration. ESDA officials say generators should always be operated in a safe, open area. They recommend storing fuel in a well-ventilated area.

Barbecue pits and camp stoves are useful for cooking outdoors.

Safe sources of water in the home include water drained from standing hot-water heater tanks, water dipped from the flush tank of the toilet (which must be purified before using), melted ice cubes, canned fruit and vegetable juice, and liquids from other canned goods.

Unsafe sources of water in the home include water from hot-water boilers or other home heating systems, water from radiators, water from water beds (fungicides added to the water or chemical substances in the vinyl can make the water unsafe), water from toilet tanks if chemicals are used, and water from toilet bowls.

2 join SEMC governing board

GRANITE CITY — Two new members have joined the governing board at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Kemp E. Beall, vice president and general manager of the Granite City Division of National Steel Corp., and the Rev. Kevin O'Rourke were appointed to the SEMC governing board by the Sisters of Divine Providence for two-year terms.

"I'm pleased to be on the board at St. Elizabeth," Beall said.

"I'm interested in preventive and wellness programs for myself and my employees. SEMC has those programs and facilities. I hope that, together, the two organizations can work toward the betterment of our community's health."

Beall began his career in 1959 as a mechanical maintenance trainee at the company's former Weirton Steel division in Weirton, W. Va.

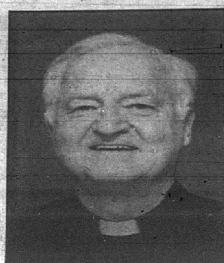

Following a series of foreman and supervisory assignments, Beall was promoted to his present position as head of the firm's Granite City Division in March 1980.

Beall graduated from Carnegie Institute of Technology (now Carnegie Mellon University) in 1959 with a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering. He also has taken postgraduate studies at Purdue University's North Central Campus.

"In the very early years of SEMC, the electricity for our elevator was supplied by National Steel, and through the years they have supported us generously," Sr. Mary Thomas, board chairman of the medical center, said.

"This support is again renewed with the acceptance of Kemp Beall to serve on the board."

"I am happy to join the board because I realize the great work the medical center has done in the St. Louis metropolitan area," O'Rourke said.

"I respect the leadership and the people associated with the medical center, and I'm glad to be associated with St. Elizabeth."

O'Rourke attended Notre Dame University and was ordained in 1954. He also obtained a licentiate in sacred theology from Aquinas Institute and a doctorate in canon law from St. Thomas University, Rome.

O'Rourke has been honored, for dedication to excellence in writing and teaching with presentation of the master of sacred theology degree by the Dominican Order.

"We are honored by the presence of an internationally known ethicist."

"In this day of rapidly changing technology, ethical concerns often present themselves," Sr. Thomas said.

"Father O'Rourke will add much to the board membership with his expertise in many areas of the medical field — specifically, medical ethics."

Currently, there are 11 members of the governing board at SEMC — composed of individuals from the medical center and community who are appointed by the Sisters of Divine Providence.

The governing board appoints the medical staff members, creates the medical center's policies, controls the financial aspects and keeps abreast of community needs and needs in the medical field in general.

COATS FOR KIDS

K mart, KSDK sponsor 5th annual winter coat drive for needy children

Dropoff sites have been set up at the 23 St. Louis area K mart stores and at KSDK-TV Channel 5 for winter coats to be collected during the 5th annual "Coats for Kids" winter clothing drive for needy St. Louis children.

The collection bins will be in place until December 31, according to Wayne Perzee, K mart district manager. The annual drive is sponsored by K mart and KSDK.

"Participating in the 'Coats for Kids' drive is just another way we at K mart can show our concern for and eagerness to help the communities our stores serve," said Perzee. He also said that while coats are the focus of the campaign, other cold-weather items such as blankets, sweaters and mittens are also welcomed.

Karen Foss, KSDK news anchor and the honorary spokesperson for the annual campaign, said that St. Louis' needy require even more help this year due to the difficult economy. "Remember that since the economy is bad," she said, "the disadvantaged are feeling it more. Therefore, be generous and share. It could be you."

She also issued a reminder that the lack of a warm winter coat can prevent a child from participating in everyday winter activities. "A simple thing like a warm coat means more than just being warm," she said. "It means the opportunity to go to school and to play."

Perzee said the program has experienced great success over the past four years, growing from 6,000 coats collected in 1986 to 97,000 collected in 1989. This year, their goal is to collect at least 100,000 coats for needy children.

Donated items will be picked up from dropoff sites by the St. Louis Coca-Cola Bottling Company and the Gateway Seed Company and will be distributed to needy children throughout the bistate area with the help of the United Way.

Daniel Henroid, senior vice president of United Way Volunteer and Agency Services, said the United Way has already received hundreds of requests from area families in need of the winter clothing. "With the onset of the cold weather, having warm clothing for children becomes a real priority," said Henroid. "The 'Coats for Kids' program alleviates a major family problem, enabling needy families to focus on other problems, like where to live and how to get food."

Something to be thankful for this Thanksgiving — family reunited

By Nicole Vaughn

CAHOKIA — Gary Day of Caseyville got his 40th birthday present a few days late. He met his natural mother and half-sister Nov. 9.

"It's about the best birthday present I ever got," said Day, who was adopted shortly after his birth Nov. 4, 1950.

The course of Gary Day's life was forever altered when his adoptive parents, Ken and Marjorie Day of Collinsville, arrived at his dog grooming shop in Caseyville Nov. 9 to tell him the news.

The couple presented Gary Day with a copy of the Oct. 26 Cahokia-Dupo Journal story about a Cahokia woman's search for her half-brother. "I read it and I knew it was me," he said.

He wasted no time calling his half-sister, Barb Robinson, whose number appeared in the story. Gary Day got her answering machine.

"I couldn't believe it," Day said. "I find out someone's been looking for me and I get an answering machine."

Gary Day later contacted the Journal and was then able to call Barb Robinson's office. But Robinson, who had already gotten Day's recorded message, had left her office and had launched a frantic search for her mother, Doris (Hayes) Barb Robinson, also of Cahokia.

She found her mother and met with Gary Day at her home that evening. On Monday, Nov. 12, Barb Robinson played host to Gary Day, their mother, Day's parents, and friends Anne Lacroix of Cahokia and Mildred Lloyd of East St. Louis.

Gary Day owns Disco Dog Casing in Caseyville. He is secretary of the Zoning Board of Appeals there and plans to run for the Village Board in April.

Lloyd and Lacroix played integral parts in the reunion. Lacroix had read the Journal article that told of the plight of Doris Hayes Robinson, who had been young, unmarried and unable to care for her infant son, put up for adoption at Christian Welfare Hospital in East St. Louis.

Lacroix was acquainted with Doris Robinson's mother, who had been young, unmarried and unable to care for her infant son, put up for adoption at Christian Welfare Hospital in East St. Louis.

Doris Robinson, and Lacroix also had a friend, Lloyd, who had worked at the hospital.

Lloyd had worked at the hospital with Marjorie Day. Lloyd knew that Marjorie Day had adopted two boys born at the hospital, but Lloyd was not sure what year the adoptions had taken place. Lloyd called Marjorie Day and told her about the story.

"I was positive (that it was Gary) before I even got the article," Marjorie Day recalled. She and her husband later got a copy of the story but decided to wait to give it to their son until after they returned from a trip to Florida.

"He's (Gary) got high blood pressure and we didn't know what reaction he would have," Ken Day said.

The Days had never kept their son's adoption a secret. Gary Day said his natural mother's dilemma had been explained to him early on.

"I always knew that it was never that she didn't love me or want me," Gary Day said. "She (Doris Robinson) was worried that I wouldn't want to see her. She couldn't have been more wrong."

He said that many times he thought about looking for his family but just never did it. "I always wanted to know what my heritage was," Gary Day said, adding that he was pleasantly surprised to learn of American-Indian roots.

Doris Robinson was quiet through most of the Nov. 12 excitement, contentedly flipping through photo albums that the Days had brought along.

"I was really worried about the article, but we'd tried every other way to find him," Doris Robinson said.

"I wasn't sure what my family's reactions would be but it was at the opposite of what I expected. Now they can't wait to see him. I think I'm still in shock."

Particularly shocked was Doris Robinson's other son, Ken. Barb Robinson had not told her brother about her year and a half search for their half-brother.

When Gary Day came to Barb Robinson's, she made a call to Los Gatos, Calif., where she reached Ken Robinson on his car telephone.

"I told her (Barb), 'Don't shock this guy too much — he's in a car,'" Gary Day said.

Gary Day strongly resembles his half-brother, who is two years his junior. And he and his half-sister have discovered they have lots in common.

"We're both dog freaks, love computers, have sinus problems and a bad ear," Gary Day said.

He has yet to meet his grandmother, Naoma Hayes, an 83-year-old resident of the Alden Nursing Center-Cahokia. "My family has definitely gotten bigger," he said.

Both the Days and Robinsons were pleased that the reunion could happen before the holidays. "This Thanksgiving we'll really have something to be thankful for," Barb Robinson said.

Gary Day agreed. "This couldn't have happened without some kind of divine intervention," Gary Day said. "After 40 years and with hardly any clues, it's really rare that this should happen. I'm still waiting for 'Unsolved Mysteries' to call me."

He said that many times he thought about looking for his family but just never did it.

Recycling backers are encouraging 'ethical shopping'

By Roger McGrath

Correspondent

Francis Scheidegger fields 12 to 15 calls a day. Leon Golfin takes a similar number.

The callers generally pose an all-in-one question: What can I do out down on waste, improve the environment and convince manufacturers to behave in an environmentally sound and ethical manner?

Scheidegger, a Kirkwood councilman and dean of St. Louis recycling, and Golfin, the chief of St. Louis County's waste management section, offer callers the same answer: Vote with your dollars.

"Every time you pull out your wallet you're making a vote for or against the environment," says Jessica Weiss, associate editor of the Green Consumer Letter, a monthly newsletter out of Washington, D.C. To help grocery shoppers make an informed choice, she's writing a book, "Green Consumer Supermarket Guide."

The environment isn't the only issue on consumers' ballot. For example, an increasing number of shoppers are saying "no" to cosmetics, health and beauty aids that have been tested on animals. Others won't patronize companies that serve nuclear power industry or have operations in South Africa.

It's often called ethical shopping, this business of putting your money where your mouth is, and more and more consumers are said to be doing it. Since early 1989, the New York City-based Council on Economic Priorities has sold more than 700,000 copies of its pocket-book guide, "Shopping for a Better World," says co-author, Rosalyn Will.

"What this (guide) does is empower people" by telling them about companies' policies on charitable giving, advancement opportunities for women and minorities, plus addressing such political issues as nuclear weapons, nuclear power and South Africa, Will says.

For example, companies that give less than 1 percent of pretax earnings to charity are noted in the guide. Observers say environmental activism is the strongest of the ethical-shopping issues.

"They'll stop buying a product because it's not environmentally sound," Scheidegger says.

Last week, an angry consumer called Scheidegger to announce she had complained to a manufacturer who, for no apparent reason, had adopted a multilayered packaging policy that was a waste of resources.

"People really can have an impact," Weiss says. Her favorite example is the tuna industry, which earlier this year adopted a policy that is expected to cut the number of dolphins killed in tuna nets.

This kind of a result makes for an exciting marketplace, where manufacturers of packaged goods race to be responsive to the demands of their customers, said Roger Pryor, executive director of the Coalition for the Environment, University City.

A fabric softener, for example, now is available in concentrated form. The user simply empties the granules into a plastic bottle already on hand and then adds water. "That way you're not throwing away that plastic bottle every time," Pryor says.

The public interest in ethical shopping has been duly noted by Green Cross, a company based in Oakland, Calif. that is working on a labeling program. The company is developing a stamp of approval that would go on products that meet certain ethical-shopping requirements established by Green Cross.

Consumers in metropolitan Kansas City said they would be willing to spend between 5 and 10 percent more for an "environmentally friendly" product.

Consumer awareness also goes hand-in-hand with recycling, observers say. "Ethical shopping is definitely a part of resource recovery and waste minimization," Golfin says.

His goal, which he describes as "ambitious yet realistic," is to convince St. Louis County residents to recycle as much as 50 percent of their solid waste.

That level of recycling, when added to minimal packaging on many products, would halve the number of trash trucks on the streets and double the life of existing landfills, he says.

By his calculations, fully 90 percent of the waste sent to landfills can be recycled. The problem is getting consumers to separate materials, such as tossing glass into one container and aluminum cans in another.

At times, public interest in recycling even has outstripped industry's capacity, Pryor says.

Jefferson Smurfit, which turns newspaper and cardboard into Domino's pizza boxes in Chesterfield, earlier this year had to quit accepting material for several weeks because it did not have the manufacturing capacity to keep up with the amount of newspaper it was taking in.

But that has not deterred involvement by companies like Amoco Oil Co., which announced that St. Louis is the kickoff point for a program in which Amoco stations will accept used oil from do-it-yourself mechanics.

Employees at companies with office recycling efforts also learn the value of separating trash, a concept they then bring home, says Terry Ingram, a spokeswoman for Jefferson Smurfit Corp. at its headquarters in Clayton.

Local companies collecting recyclable office waste include Monsanto Co. and Mallinckrodt Inc. D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles recycled 40,000 pounds of paper in July and August alone, said a spokesman for the agency in downtown St. Louis.

The proceeds from D'Arcy's recycling go into a Christmas fund that benefits the needy.

The City of Kirkwood is finding out that recycling can be a twofold benefit. The city-owned recycling center, founded 20 years ago by Councilman Francis Scheidegger, has raised as much as $26,000 a year for the city by selling the recyclable materials brought in by an average of 955 cars a day.

"People want to recycle," Scheidegger says.

But the city's greater saving is in its trash bill, which has decreased by $33,000 to $40,000 annually because its trash hauler has less refuse to haul and therefore less landfill dumping fees to pay.

"Shopping for a Better World" is available for $5.95 from the Council on Economic Priorities, 30 Irving Place, New York, N.Y. 10003.

For more information about the Green Consumer Letter, a monthly newsletter that updates "Green Consumer," a handbook for environmental shopping published this year, write to: Tilden Press, 1526 Connecticut Ave., NW, Washington, D.C. 20036. An annual subscription costs $27.

Starting firm? Check on taxes

By Sylvia Porter

Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Millions of Americans are self-employed.

With the economy tilting down, more will join them in coming months — working from their homes, buying a franchise or starting a small consulting or manufacturing operation.

Most of these businesses will fail within five years.

While starting up your own business sounds like a dream, it becomes a disaster more often than not.

The reason frequently is not the entrepreneur's lack of experience in his or her field. Rather, it is lack of knowledge of financial management. Too little capital. Failure to understand cash flow. Or, frequently, too many surprises from the tax collector.

You must pay attention to your total financial commitments at the inception of the business," says Prof. Dennis Lassila, a contributing editor to Bender's Federal Tax Service.

"Be aware of tax forms you must file and taxes you must pay. Many entrepreneurs fail to build the cost of these taxes into their overhead, or they forget to file forms. They pay the price later."

Lassila, who is associate professor of accounting at Texas A&M University, warns you to be aware of these fundamentals as you build your business plan:

"As a business owner, you must pay self-employment tax, both the employee and the employer portions. In 1990, the amount of this tax is 14.1 percent of net income from the business, as per your tax return.

"There is a special deduction mechanism used to arrive at this figure for 1990 — the nominal rate is 15.3 percent.)

You must pay self-employment tax on up to $51,300. If you have a company and still hold another job, your other wages will be included in the equation.

"When you start your own business, you should project what kind of wages you could have made elsewhere as an employee.

You will not pay yourself a salary. Rather, you will "draw" on your net profit, which is subject to income tax and self-employment tax. Sometimes new business owners are surprised when they do not have an instant gold mine.

"You must make estimated quarterly tax payments. The U.S. government requires regular payments because it is assumed that you might not have enough money for an annual lump payment.

If you own a business and are employed by someone else at the same time, you can ask your employer to withhold more from your pay to compensate for money not being withheld in your business.

"When you have employees, you must withhold federal income taxes on their gross pay and Social Security taxes (FICA). Employers can deposit FICA and tax payments through deposit system (through your own bank). The Internal Revenue System will tell you how frequently to make these deposits.

"You will make state tax deposits in a similar way. In some cities, you will be responsible for even tax withholding.

"Businesses can be threatened, even closed up, if they do not deposit these taxes. The IRS levies penalties for late or missed payments as well.

All tax liabilities survive bankruptcy.

You don't get rid of them by going bankrupt.

"You must pay state and federal unemployment taxes for all employees. The state unemployment rate varies from state to state.

When you set up your payment schedule, set up your forms schedule as well. The IRS demands that you file certain information at certain times of the year.

"Remember, having employees is more than a power trip. It involves widespread responsibilities.

Your employees and you may be subject to workman's compensation, federal wage and hour laws, civil rights provisions and Occupational Safety and Health Act provisions.

"As a self-employed owner, you cannot get ordinary fringe benefits available to employees in corporations.

One exception is that you can deduct 25 percent of health insurance through the business. You also can provide yourself with a Keogh retirement plan. If you have employees, you will have to cover them as well, which will add to the cost of doing business.

"Your tax professional will tell you which of your expenses are deductible.

Keep your personal and business expenses separate. Use separate checkbooks. Use separate credit cards.

If you use your business account to pay for something personal, write it on the stub.

MEGSI expands; drug dealers put on notice

By Liz Quirin
Staff writer

METRO EAST — Economic expansion is generally heralded as good fortune for a community or region.

And when the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois (MEGSI) expands, it means drug dealers are put on notice that more law enforcement personnel will be on the streets.

MEGSI has moved into larger quarters in the Metro East area because of a $600,000 grant to deal with the narcotics problems in East St. Louis, said Jerry Juenger, director of the group.

When Gov. James R. Thompson authorized $1.5 million in June to assist East St. Louis in dealing with its problems, $650,000 of that money was earmarked for drug enforcement, Juenger said.

The additional money, which will cover a three-year period, will pay for 13 officers, Juenger said.

A separate unit will be formed under MEGSI because, for the first time, MEGSI units will have uniforms (uniformed officers) working with them, Juenger said.

MEGSI covers Madison, St. Clair and Monroe counties. Men in the unit are police officers who come from other agencies to work with the MEGSI unit for a designated period of time and then go back to their own departments, Juenger said.

The location of MEGSI's headquarters is confidential, Juenger said.

There will be a short business meeting at 7:30, immediately followed by the presentation of the video.

No one will be admitted after the film begins and no children will be allowed to enter, Kristin Hamilton, Grigsby PTSA treasurer, said.

The meeting will be held in the school cafeteria.

Move to new state doesn't affect benefit

By Bill Hunot

Social Security Administration — Q. I am a social worker. One of my clients just moved to St. Louis from Texas. He gets Social Security and Medicare. Will his benefits change because he moved?

A. Social Security and Medicare's hospital insurance are the same throughout the United States.

Your client should notify Social Security about his new address but he should not worry about the amount of his check or about having to pay more for stays in the hospital.

He might notice slight changes in Part B of Medicare, though, because Part B reimbursement can vary according to geographic area.

One of the steps in determining a Part B-approved charge is to compare bills for similar services provided in that area.

If the typical health-care costs here are much different than where your client used to live, then his medical expenses could change.

Part B pays 80 percent of approved charges for doctors' bills, durable medical equipment and other outpatient charges after a $75 yearly deductible.

Q. I know Medicare will not cover all my medical expenses and I intend to purchase another insurance policy to supplement Medicare. Can you recommend one?

A. I cannot endorse a particular company.

But here are a few tips for people shopping for supplemental medical insurance.

Before you buy insurance, be sure that you compare policies offered by several different companies.

Read each policy carefully to make sure that it gives the kind of protection you need.

Do not buy more insurance than you need.

Do not buy insurance that duplicates Medicare or coverage from another policy.

Always check for pre-existing condition clauses, because they mean a policy will not pay to treat conditions you already have.

Do not believe anyone who tells you he is from the government and tries to sell you insurance.

The government does not sell Medicare supplements.

Do not let a salesman pressure you into buying something before you have had time to make a careful, informed decision.

Q. Early this year I inherited some farm land.

I am not a farmer, so I rent out the land to someone who is.

Do I have to pay Social Security tax on the rental income? Will it count against the limits on my earnings when I start drawing Social Security?

A. Rental income generally is not covered by Social Security taxes and will not count against earnings limits on people drawing Social Security.

So if you are merely renting farm land to someone without taking part in the farming operation, your rental income will not count for Social Security purposes.

Farm rental income does count, however, if you are materially participating in farming the land.

It sounds like you will have a simple tenant-landlord relationship.

But if you are making decisions about the crop or otherwise taking part in the labor or management of the farming operation, then you could be considered to be in the farm business whether you call yourself a farmer or not.

For more information call 800-234-5772 and ask for Fact Sheet No. 7, Farm Rental Income.

Q. I'm drawing Social Security retirement benefits.

How much can I earn during 1991 without it affecting my benefits?

A. It depends on how old you are.

People under age 65 can earn up to $7,080 in 1991 and still be considered fully retired and get all of their Social Security benefits for the year.

That limit is up from $6,840 for 1990.

If more than $7,080 is earned, $1 will be withheld from benefits for each $2 above the limit.

Retirees age 65 to 69 can earn up to $9,720 in 1991. (Their limit for 1990 was $9,360.)

This older group loses a dollar for every three earned above the limit.

If you are age 70 or older you can earn what you want and still get all of your Social Security. There is no limit beginning with the month you turn 70.

Send your questions about Social Security to Bill Hunot, St. Louis News Service, 1215 Fern Ridge Parkway, Suite 108, St. Louis, Mo. 63141.

Cool and confident

Claggett has high hopes for team, self

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

VENICE — As he begins his senior season, Erwin Claggett doesn't seem to be lacking much.

Least of all confidence. Claggett, the Red Devils' 6-2, 170-pound shooting guard, doesn't have specific personal goals for the 1990-91 season, which begins Tuesday when Columbia comes to Venice. But his goal for the team is an eye-catcher.

"All I want to do this year is carry the team to an undefeated season and the state championship," Claggett said.

That's all? Hoping for a state championship certainly isn't an unreasonable goal. Since Clinton Harris became the Venice coach seven years ago, the Devils have been a constant threat to go to state, and won it all in 1987.

This year's team is capable of good things, too. But an undefeated season seems to be a lofty goal, what with a schedule filled with teams like East St. Louis Lincoln (twice), East St. Louis Cardinal Ritter, Madison and Mater Dei, just to name a few.

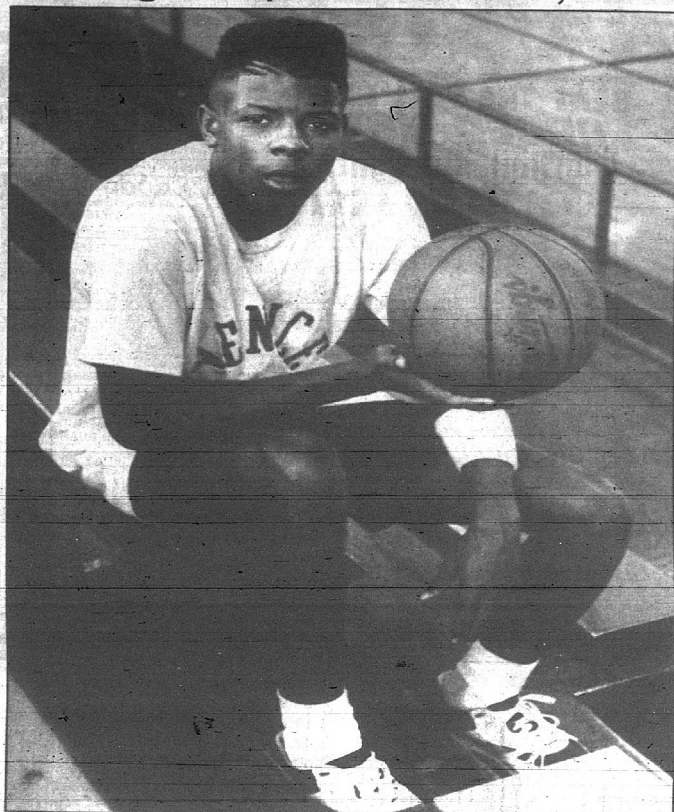

But Claggett, who signed a letter of intent last week to play college ball at St. Louis University, probably won't mind attracting attention. In fact, he doesn't feel like he's gotten all the attention he deserves in what has so far been an outstanding high school career.

"I don't think the players in this area are noticed as much as the players in Chicago," Claggett said. "We're kind of caught between Chicago and St. Louis and we get overshadowed by the players there."

Claggett should get plenty of attention this season. If he doesn't, those responsible are missing out on something special.

"First of all, Erwin is just a tremendous athlete," said St. Louis U. coach Rich Graver. "That was the first thing that caught our attention. But the big thing about Erwin is the way he can shoot off the dribble. That's his calling card. You look for players who can either drive to the basket or pull up and shoot the jumper. Erwin can do both tremendously."

When Claggett signed with SLU last week, he was the first of what looks to be an outstanding freshman crop for the Billikens in 1991. He was followed just a few hours later by Rittenour's Eric Bickel, Parkway West's Scott Highmark and then Brian Smith of Crete-Monee (Ill.). The next day, Julian Winfield of Cardinal Ritter signed with SLU.

"In terms of quantity and quality, this looks like our best recruiting class," said Graver. "We had big years when we landed (Monroe) Douglass and (Roland) Gray, then the next year we got (Anthony) Bonner and (Anthony) Jones. But this time we're getting five real good."

(See CLAGGETT, Page 3B)

Bowland's Barbie Dolls take 1st place in nation

A local junior bowling team has been named first in the nation by the Young American Bowling Alliance.

The Barbie Dolls (Sara Rinehart, Lindsay Moore, Lauren Wilkinson, Kimberly Greer and Sherri Freeman) have received national recognition for their 911 handicap game and 1711 handicap series rolled on April 22 and Jan. 27 in tournaments. They rolled a first-place score in the ISYABA Tournament and fourth in the Quad City YABA Team Tournament.

Their 911 score leads the 1989-1990 Bantam team game division for all youth aged 8 and under.

Rinehart rolled a 98, Moore a 101, Wilkinson contributed an 86, Greer a 121, and Freeman rolled a 98. Those scores combined with their 907 handicap brought the team game total to 911.

For their accomplishment, each bowler received an engraved plaque and a Nation's Top Ten Certificate and emblem. They will also be recognized in the first issue of the YABA magazine. Rinehart, Moore, Greer, Wilkinson and Freeman continue to bowl in Junior Leagues at Bowland Lanes under the direction of Linda Moore, junior director.

Bowling Express team places on YABA national top ten list

The Bowling Express, a local junior bowling team from Bowland, has received national recognition for their Nation's top ten scores.

They rolled a high series of 3089 on Feb. 11 in the Greater St. Louis 21st team event, and a high game of 1068 on the same date. Those scores led the 1989-1990 Junior High Series and High Game Division for youths aged 12-14.

Jason Cundiff rolled a high game of 183 and high series of 587. Wayne Hagopian rolled a high game of 208 and high series of 683. Jeff Hensley bowled a high game of 178 and a high series of 623. Tammy Mendenhall rolled a high game of 210 and a high series of 634. Eric Vallo bowled a high game of 163 and a high series of 532.

For their accomplishment, each bowler received a Nation's Top Ten Certificate and emblem. They will also be recognized in the first issue of the YABA Magazine. Cundiff, Hagopian and Hensley continue to bowl in the Junior Leagues at Bowland Lanes under the direction of Linda Moore, junior director.

Claggett

Claggett, Bickel, Winfield and Highmark all played together last summer for the St. Louis Eagles in a national Amateur Athletic Union tournament. They played third at the Under 18 finals in Jonesboro, Ark. It was then that Claggett's value shot up. But he said it wasn't because of anything he was doing differently. It was just a matter of that elusive recognition.

"I played the same way I always have," Claggett said. "But a lot of Division I coaches got to see me. I had planned it out that way. I thought if I had a good summer that it would really help me."

The Eagles lost to a team from Hampton, Va., in the national semifinals before coming back to win the third-place game.

"That (Hampton) was a team we should have blown off the court," said Claggett. "We know what we have to do to win next year. We're going back to play in the Under 19 tournament."

"But it was fun. We were pretty confident we could make some noise. We ran the ball up and down the court all the time. It was exciting playing against some world-class talent."

"Knowing each other on the court is a big help to a group of players," said Claggett. "So the fact that they know each other is a big help from a basketball standpoint. But even more importantly, they will be together off the court. It's a tough adjustment for any kid going from a homogeneous high school environment to a heterogeneous college campus. But they will be able to be with one another. And getting them all signed early sure helps me, too."

But before the AAU tournament or the college career comes one more year at Venice. And one team which could stand between Claggett and his goal of a state championship is made up of a group of some of his oldest and best friends — the Madison Trojans.

You see, the third son of Anna Claggett was born to wear the Trojan green. Older brothers Carvell and Charles Claggett were both members of state championship teams while Larry Graham coached at Madison in the 1970s and early '80s. The Claggetts lived in the Madison school district right up until after Erwin completed the eighth grade.

The move to Venice in 1987 suddenly put Erwin on the other side of one of the more hotly-contested cross-town rivalries for miles around.

"I grew up playing ball with all the guys who are on the Madison team now," said Claggett.

"All I want to do this year is carry the team to an undefeated season and the state championship."

—Erwin Claggett

"Andre Mays and Antonio Smith are probably my two best friends over there. We hang out once in a while. Every year they say they are going to beat us, but they haven't done it yet."

Indeed, the Trojans haven't beaten the Devils since 1985, so Claggett has maintained bragging rights. But he hasn't always been satisfied with his play against his buddies.

"The first couple of years I tried to do too much against them," he said. "It was a little better last year. It should be pretty exciting this year, but I think we can handle them again."

Claggett said he hasn't heard too many negative things about his cross-town move. But there has been some.

"At first, there were some people who called me a traitor or called me Benedict Arnold," he said. "But that just helps me get fired up. Coach (Al) Collins has my coach in eighth grade and I think he thought I peaked early. So it's a little motivation for me to show him I can keep getting better."

Collins, of course, is now the head coach at Madison. It could be a very interesting evening Dec. 18 when the Red Devils and Trojans meet — particularly if Claggett's hopes of that undefeated season are still a possibility. Led by Mays and Smith, the Trojans have his good chance of knocking off the Devils as they have had in years.

And what do Claggett's brothers think of seeing him in the red and black?

"They were kind of shocked at first when they saw me playing for Venice," Erwin said. "But they adapted to it and now they cheer me on."

There should be plenty to cheer this season.

"The team is capable of going undefeated," said Claggett. "We have a lot of guys who are willing to work hard. I'll do whatever it takes to win. I don't have any scoring goals, but I could probably get 25 or 30 points per game if that's what we need. I'll handle the ball, pass and rebound if that's what it takes."

And his confidence in himself keeps shining through.

"I can't see too many weaknesses in my game," Claggett said. "I guess the main things I'll have to work on for college are defense and ballhandling."

And conditioning. Claggett feels he weakened in the second half of games at times last year. The last time, in the Freeburg Regional final, proved costly as Venice blew a 10-point lead in the last four minutes to Lebanon.

"We were a lot better than Lebanon," Claggett said. "We just lost our heads." Claggett has a lot to look forward to at SLU. The Billikens will be in the new Great Midwest Conference with DePaul, Marquette, Memphis State, Cincinnati and Alabama-Birmingham. They might also be playing in the new arena being talked about to replace Kiel Auditorium by 1994. That would be Claggett's senior year.

Who knows what the future

Erwin is just a tremendous athlete. The big thing is the way he can shoot off the dribble. That's his calling card. You look for players who can either drive to the basket or pull up and hit the jumper. Erwin can do both tremendously.

—Rich Grawer
SLU basketball coach could hold for him by then. Yet despite his confidence, Claggett isn't ready to label himself an NBA star of the future.

"My eyes aren't set on a pro career yet," he said. "The most important thing is getting a good education and a good job."

Still, he has heroes at the pro and college levels, like Isaiah Thomas, Joe Dumars, Kenny Anderson, Chris Jackson and — of course — Michael Jordan. "Basketball always came pretty easy to me," Claggett said. "A lot of coaches think it's hard to shoot off the dribble, but that's something I can do which is similar to the way Jordan does it."

About the only thing Claggett hasn't done on the court is dunk the ball much.

"It's just something I was a little unsure of," he said. "If I went up and missed one I would have to come over to the bench and face him."

With that, he pointed at Harris, a coach only slightly less physically imposing than Georgetown's John Thompson.

"You'll see a lot of dunking this year," Claggett promised.

Maybe then he'll get all the attention he's looking for.

DAR reaches centennial year

The Drucilla Andrews Chapter of the Daughters of American Revolution met in October at the home of Georgia Engelke and Mae McCormick. The meeting was opened by Judi Schatz, leading the Pledge of Allegiance.

Florence Woodward, a chapter member, was honored for her 60th year as a DAR member. She was presented a certificate and an arrangement of flowers.

The President General's message, read by Engelke, stated DAR membership has grown from 18 members in one chapter in 1890 to 3,000 chapters and more than 200,000 members. Marie Reinhardt presented the defense report, titled "Salute to DAR for its Centennial."

The program prepared by Barbara Williams included excerpts taken from the early minutes of the Drucilla Andrews Chapter from a period between March 1924 and November 1950.

Alvina Thurau, Audrey Sperry and Marie Reinhardt presented the program, giving a short history of the chapter's activities. Drucilla Andrews Chapter is now 66 years old. Others attending were Dorothy Whitner, Jane Vanesler, Margaret Belt, Marge Hiker, Emma Schoen and Nancy Emahiser.

Laureate reviews activities to date

Members of the Laureate, Alpha Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi reviewed organizational activities and accomplishments held during the first third of the club year.

President Alice Koniczny of Collinsville conducted two regular meetings each month since September, one of which she hosted. Others were held in the homes of Dolores Byrnes in Troy, Evelyn Tolliver in Edwardsville, and Joyce Alexander and Arlene Haldeman of Granite City.

At each meeting, one member was responsible for selecting and conducting a cultural program and then leading a discussion.

Programs have been presented by Beatrice Brackett on the "History of the Clock" and "Touring Alaska"; Juanita Calve, "Understanding Earthquakes"; Tolliver, "Famous Women of This Century"; and Alexander, "Telephonic Communications in Year 2000 and Beyond."

Reports by officers and the chairmen of standing committees with ongoing calendars of events also were given at each meeting. Tolliver, who chairs the Service Committee, regularly gives a briefing at meetings on various projects members are sponsoring this year, such as continued support of OATH clients with disabilities, the Salvation Army, and the chapter's traditional gifts of homemade Christmas cookies and other holiday sweets to be delivered to special elderly friends and relatives.

The Social Committee of Ruth Stoyanoff, Dolores Dorch and Pat Tsigalaroff have planned get-togethers enjoyed by the aforementioned and Jean Forrest and Lora Mae Lombardi. These social affairs have included an evening at the movies, a milestone birthday party honoring Ralph Haldeman, a house tour of the Soudard Neighborhood in St. Louis, and a recent visit to the Cahokia Historical Site.

Several local schools aided service 'Mail Call'

Mail Call!...these two words are music to the ears of just about everyone who wears our country's uniform. Remember the eager anticipation when Radar or Klinger passed out the mail on M*A*S*H?

Americans from coast to coast joined together last year in a "Mail Call" program and had themselves a Star-Spangled Christmas while they spread "points of light" to a thousand places.

Christmas was thus made just a little better for more than 150,000 of our servicemen and women, many of them young people away from home for the first time, said Lee Spencer, national director.

"Mail Call" combines greetings from thousands of members, re-sorting all the cards and letters into more than 1,000 bundles, which are then sent priority mail to units and locations in more than 40 states as well as to every corner of the globe. Some of the 1,000 bundles will be sent to the Middle East, Spencer said.

The twin goals are to include mail from many people and places in each outgoing bundle, while spreading each person's greetings as widely as possible. Some participants have received responses from every continent.

While the number of units and ships receiving mail increased yet again last year, the highlight was our ability to quickly send almost 15,000 cards to America's men and women who fought in Panama in "Operation Just Cause" during Christmas.

A letter from the commander of an airborne unit stated: "...Mail Call was a real morale booster and a pleasant surprise to us all. It made us proud to be Americans, knowing so many stood behind us as we fought in Panama."

And from a 4-H group leader: "What an experience! Especially exciting were replies received from servicemen and women involved in 'Operation Just Cause' in Panama. Letters were read at school during discussions of world events. 'Knowing' someone who was there made all the difference!"

Joining other Americans from coast to coast in the 1989 Christmas Mail Call were Niedringhaus Elementary School (coordinated by Linda Koenig — No. 1 elementary school in Illinois and No. 5 nationally) — and Janice Camren of Frohardt School (coordinated by Marilyn Ronney, fifth grade teacher), both of Granite City; and Our Lady Queen of Peace School, Bethalto.

Sincere thanks to them and to all who helped make that program and the 1990 Valentine Mail Call the most successful ever, Spencer said. "Mail Call" (directed by a former Pentagon staffer) is an exciting project for individuals, families and groups. Because the mail goes to so many places, teachers across the country have adopted "Mail Call" as an aid in teaching geography, in addition to reading, writing, English, typing, word processing, citizenship, the postal service — you name it! Many PTAs and other groups sponsor participation by local schools.

To learn how to help spread "points of light" to a thousand places while helping yourself to a Star-Spangled Christmas, send a stamp (please do not send a self-addressed envelope, just the stamp) to: "Mail Call," Box 817, Christmas, Fla., 32709.

Participants are asked to mention how they learned of the program.

Under Pressure

Pressure Cooker Still A Stalwart When It Comes To Quick Cooking

By Janice Denham
Journal Food Editor

The old sometimes seems new in the kitchen. That is why the pressure cooker is popular again. It cooks quickly, conserves energy, tenderizes economical cuts of meat and cooks old-fashioned dishes with style.

Lorna J. Sass in her new cookbook, "Cooking Under Cover" (William Morrow & Co. Inc., $18.95), says pressure cookers cut cooking time one-third. Some appliance makers claim it cooks various foods in one-tenth the time.

If you are looking at new pressure cookers, go for a large size, preferably at least 6 quarts. If there is an old one in the attic, be certain its seals are good. The local university extension office is the best place to have it checked. Call first to make an appointment. Only pressure cookers with variable pressure gauges need to be checked for pressure, but cookers with a weighted gauge still need to have a reliable seal around the lid.

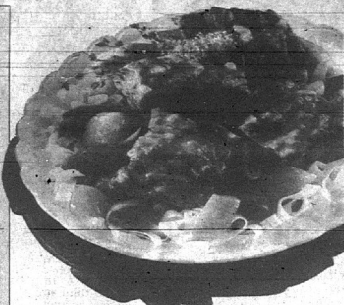

Pressure cookers usually come with a helpful instruction book. Start timing the cooking when the correct pressure is reached. Follow the recommended timing precisely for vegetables or they will be mushy. Although liquid is needed for the cooking process, an amount less than the requirement in conventional recipes usually suffices. Keep food away from the steam vent.

Even though the pressure is released before the pot is opened, a lot of hot steam is ready to escape, so open the lid carefully, tilting it away from yourself. Flavors permeate, so an even flavor throughout the dish can be expected. For specific information on an individual pressure cooker, consult the instruction booklet that came with it.

Rice and grains take to quick cooking in the cooker. Beans do not have to be soaked overnight to become tender. For instance, 1 cup red kidney beans cook with 4 cups water plus 1 tablespoon oil under 15 pounds (high) pressure in 16 to 25 minutes, compared to 10 to 12 minutes if they have been soaked overnight, Sass says. Then the cooker can be placed under cold running water to release the pressure quickly. The beans should be drained immediately.

The recipes for Chicken Pot Pie, Paprika and Peppercorn Short Ribs and Orange Cheesecake are offered by National Presto Industries Inc.

Paprika And Peppercorn Short Ribs

- 3 lb. short ribs
- 2 to 4 tbsp. oil
- 2 onions, chopped
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 3 tbsp. Hungarian paprika, or 3 tbsp. paprika plus 1/2 tsp. cayenne
- 2 tomatoes, peeled, chopped
- 1 cup water
- 1 large green bell pepper, or 1/2 red pepper and 1/2 green pepper, cut in chunks

Remove excess fat from short ribs. Heat oil in 4- or 6-quart pressure cooker. Brown short ribs a few at a time. Sauté onion in cooker, adding oil as needed. Stir in salt, pepper, paprika, tomato and water. Return ribs to pressure cooker. Do not fill pressure cooker over two-thirds full. Close pressure cooker securely. Place pressure regulator on vent pipe. Cook 10 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool pressure cooker at once. Add peppers. Close pressure cooker cover securely. Place pressure regulator on vent pipe. Cook 3 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Let pressure drop of its own accord. Thicken sauce, if desired. Serve with cooked egg noodles, if desired. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Orange Cheesecake

- 1 can (11 oz.) mandarin oranges, well drained, reserving juice
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) plus 1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup whole wheat bread crumbs, toasted
- 2 tsp. cornstarch
- 1/2 tsp. orange extract

Butter 1-quart baking or soufflé dish with straight sides. Dish should be at least 1 inch smaller than diameter of pressure cooker for proper pressure to be reached and for handling. Decoratively arrange drained orange sections in bottom of dish.

Beat cream cheese until smooth. Beat in 1/2 cup sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Pour mixture over orange sections. Sprinkle with bread crumbs on top. Cover bowl tightly with aluminum foil.

Place rack in 6-quart pressure cooker. Pour in 2 cups water. Place cheesecake on rack. Close pressure cooker cover securely. Place pressure regulator on vent pipe. Cook 15 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool pressure cooker at once under cold running water. Remove cheesecake.

Cool. Cut around inside of bowl to loosen. Invert on serving dish. Chill. Combine 1/4 cup sugar and cornstarch in small saucepan. Add 1/4 cup reserved juice. Cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens. Add extract. Cool. Spoon sauce over cheesecake to serve. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Chicken Pot Pie

- 1 (3 to 4 lb.) roasting chicken, cut up
- 2 cups water
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- Pinch pepper
- Pinch saffron or turmeric
- 6 small white onions
- 1/2 cup sliced celery
- 1/2 cup carrots, cut julienne
- 1/2 tsp. fresh or 1/2 tsp. dry thyme
- 2 tbsp. butter or margarine, melted
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- Pastry for 1 crust
- 1 egg yolk, beaten

Fresh sage leaves, if desired.

Wash chicken and pat dry with paper towel. Place cut-up chicken in 6-quart pressure cooker. Do not fill pressure cooker over two-thirds full. Add water, salt, pepper and saffron. Close pressure cooker cover securely. Place pressure regulator on vent pipe. Cook 20 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Let pressure drop of its own accord.

Remove chicken. Cool slightly. Strain broth, skimming off excess fat. Reserve 2 cups broth.

Put onions, celery, carrot and thyme in pressure cooker. Close pressure cooker cover securely. Place pressure regulator on vent pipe. Cook 3 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool pressure cooker at once under cold running water.

Remove bones and skin from chicken and break or cut meat in large pieces. Put chicken in pressure cooker with vegetables. Bring to simmer. Blend together butter and flour. Add to pressure cooker pan. Stir until thickened. Stir in sour cream. Pour hot mixture into 2-quart casserole.

Roll pastry to fit and cover top of dish. Crimp edges. If desired, brush with egg yolk. Arrange sage leaves on top of crust. Bake about 15 minutes in 450° oven until browned. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Fresh pear bread rises to warm, flavorful occasion

Nothing smells more appealing than bread baking in the oven and nothing disappears faster than warm bread made with fresh pears.

Spread with preserves or peanut butter, Pear Wheat Bread is a warm choice for breakfast. It works perfectly at lunch with a tossed green salad and cheese. For dinner, it is a pleasing complement to soup and other entrees.

Accompany hot chili, stew or hearty soup with Pear Anadama Bread. Preserves or honeyed butter is the choice for spreading on it.

Pear anadama bread

- 2 ripe fresh pears
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- 1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup light molasses
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. allspice
- 1 cake compressed yeast
- 2 1/2 to 3 cups flour
- 2 eggs

Puree pear with lemon juice in blender to measure 1 cup (1 to 1 1/2 pears). Turn into saucepan. Stir in all but 1 tablespoon cornmeal. Cook over medium-high heat, stirring constantly, 2 to 3 minutes until thickened. Remove from heat.

Stir in butter until melted. Mix in molasses, salt and allspice. Cool to lukewarm (105° to 115°).

Crumble yeast into cornmeal mixture. Stir until dissolved. Coarsely chop remaining pear. Mix into yeast mixture with eggs and enough flour to make soft dough. Dough should not be too firm or dry.

Form into 7-inch round, mounding slightly in center. Place in greased and floured 8-inch round cake pan. Sprinkle remaining 1 tablespoon cornmeal over top. Set in warm place 1 hour or until dough rises to fill pan.

Bake in 375° oven about 45 minutes or until baked through. Cover top loosely with foil after 30 minutes if top begins to get too brown.

Cool in pan 10 minutes. Turn out of pan. Cool on wire rack. Makes 16 servings; 162 calories, 4 gm. protein, 27 gm. carbohydrate, trace fat, 42 mg. cholesterol, 235 mg. sodium and 2 gm. fiber each.

Pear wheat bread

- 2 fresh pears, peeled, cored
- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 cup unsifted whole wheat flour
- 1 tsp. tarragon, finely crumbled
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup toasted sunflower seeds

Puree pears in blender or food processor to measure 1 cup puree.

Sift flour with baking soda, salt and baking powder. Stir in whole wheat flour and tarragon.

Cream butter well with brown sugar. Add egg. Stir in flour mixture alternately with pear puree. Fold in sunflower seeds. Turn into well greased 9-by-5-inch loaf pan. Spread level. Let stand 20 minutes.

Bake below center in 350° oven about 1 hour until pick inserted in center comes out clean and dry. Remove from oven. Let bread stand in pan 10 minutes. Turn out on wire rack to cool. Makes 16 servings; 114 calories, 4 gm. protein, 18 gm. curbohydrate, 1 gm. fat, 20 mg. cholesterol, 211 mg. sodium and 2 gm. fiber each.

BAKE UP an enticing storm and serve Pear Wheat Bread warm from the oven.

Label gives clues to mystery of choosing food for health

While all Americans may not yet be following the advice, it has become conventional wisdom that cutting back on fat, cholesterol and salt — while consuming adequate amounts of fiber, vitamins and minerals — can provide tangible health benefits.

A food label is an essential source of nutrition information for consumers. Labels on packaged foods are crucial because food formulas often are so complex that it is impossible to tell what is being eaten unless it is printed on the package.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is currently undertaking the first major labeling changes in 17 years. Some of the most important include required nutrition labeling for practically all foods, including fresh fruits, vegetables and seafood.

The changes also would standardize the serving sizes shown on labels, to make comparisons easier. Stating the amounts of saturated and unsaturated fats, fiber, cholesterol, calories from fat, and sodium — which under current regulations do not have to be shown in most cases — would be required.

This recipe for Layered Vegetable-Cheese Casserole will test label-reading abilities. Look for "whole grain" bread, "low-fat" cottage cheese, "part-skim" mozzarella and "skim" milk.

Layered vegetable-cheese casserole

- 4 slices whole grain bread, quartered
- 4 cups fresh broccoli flowerets and stem pieces or 1 bag (20 oz.) frozen broccoli
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 4 oz. mushrooms, sliced
- 1/2 cup lowfat cottage cheese
- 4 oz. part-skim mozzarella cheese, sliced
- 2 eggs
- 2 cups skim milk
- 1/2 tsp. dry mustard
- 1 or 2 dashes pepper sauce, if desired

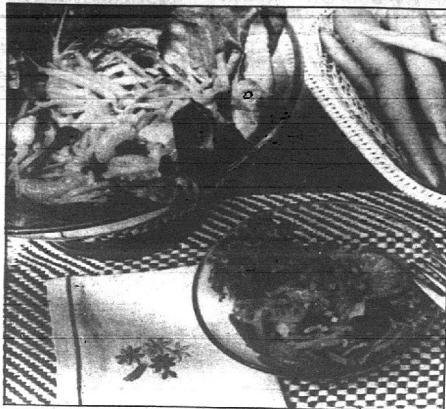

Lightly oil 1 1/2-quart casserole or 8-inch square pan. Place half the bread pieces in layer on bottom. Place vegetable on top of bread. Spread cottage cheese over vegetables, then top with mozzarella slices, overlapping if necessary.

Mix eggs, milk, mustard and pepper sauce in medium bowl. Dip remaining bread pieces into egg mixture. Add as top layer. Pour remaining egg mixture over casserole. With back of spoon, lightly press bread pieces into casserole. Bake at 350° for 35 to 40 minutes until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cover, if necessary, to avoid excessive browning.

Let stand a few minutes before cutting to serve. Yields 4 servings.

Set out trays of appetizers for convenient way to party

Any occasion — the annual office bash or meet-the-neighbors open house — is better when kicked off with mouth-watering hors d'oeuvres. Whether they are planned for a get-together at home or at a friend's party, a trio of special, simple and convenient appetizers will add delight to the festivities.

Spicy Beef Empanadas
Stretches 1 pound of lean ground beef into 50 to 60 petite, filled pastries. Guests enjoy them because they are easy to eat. Cooks like them because they can be prepared ahead and stored in the freezer for reheating on party day.

Spicy beef empanadas

- 1 lb. lean ground beef
- 1 small onion, finely chopped
- 3 large cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp. red pepper flakes
- 1 tsp. olive oil
- 1 cup tomato sauce
- 2 tbsp. chopped raisins
- 2 tbsp. toasted chopped almonds
- 1 tsp. cumin
- 1 pkg. (15 oz.) refrigerated pie crust

Brown ground beef in large

Whip up ham and cheese omelet

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in 8-inch skillet. Stir together 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon milk, pinch of pepper and 1 ounce diced ham. Cook over medium-low heat, lifting edges to allow uncooked egg flow underneath. When eggs set, dab 2 tablespoons cheese spread of any flavor atop eggs. Remove from heat. Cover skillet 3 minutes. Fold in half and serve.

Salads are popular in every season, but many people limit themselves to those made with lettuce and vegetables that are locally seasonal in summer. Because what once was summer produce is now available all year long, they get onto a year-long, lettuce-and-tomato, tossed salad treadmill.

Variety is the key to a balanced and far more interesting diet. Consider some cool-weather salad variations:

•Add kidney beans, black beans, garbanzo beans or green peas to tossed salad.

•Marinate cooked beets in sweet and sour sauce, chill and serve.

•Marinate tender-crisp, steamed broccoli in a vinaigrette dressing, such as low-fat or non-fat Italian dressing, at least 4 hours in the refrigerator.

•Fresh cranberries add a pleasant tartness to salad mixtures. Combine chopped green cabbage with diced celery, chopped cranberries and a bit of sugar or sweetener, olive oil and vinegar.

•Cauliflower can be used raw or slightly cooked in salad. Toss cooled florets with chopped black olives, pimiento and a favorite low-fat Italian salad dressing.

•Peeled and sliced or diced, raw jicama is a delicious addition to winter salad.

•Rutabaga, peeled and cut in julienne strips, makes an excellent crudite for an appetizer. It also can be diced and served with a low-fat vinaigrette dressing.

•Use orange slices to add color and taste to a green salad in place of off-season tomatoes.

•Grated carrot makes an exceptional salad ingredient. Orange and Carrot Salad is a good source of vitamins A and C, both of which have been shown in studies by the American Institute for Cancer Research to be beneficial in lowering cancer risk. The salad also is attractive and tasty.

When there seems to be no time to eat right, take some tips

Use prepared sour cream in recipes

Cake recipes with sour cream usually refer to thick dairy sour cream, not a cream or milk product that has been soured with vinegar or lemon juice at home. Using evaporated milk, black olives, pimiento and a favorite low-fat Italian salad dressing would be an experiment and probably will not result in the quality expected in a cake.

Good, better to best cookies sized small, medium, jumbo

Gourmet cookies — from giant size to miniature — can be made with just a couple basic recipes in favorite American flavors. Choose either rich chocolate chips made with peanut butter chips or chocolate chip cookies. Anyone who cannot decide can make them both.

Three-in-one chocolate chip chunk cookies

- 6 tbsp. butter or margarine, softened
- ¾ cup packed light brown sugar
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1½ cups flour
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 pkg. (12 oz.) semisweet chocolate chips or 1 pkg. (10 oz.) semisweet chocolate chunks

In large mixer bowl, beat butter, brown and granulated sugars until light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla. Beat well apart. Combine flour, baking soda and salt. Gradually blend into butter mixture. Stir in chocolate chips.

Shape and bake cookies into one of three versions.
Giant cookies: Line 12-inch round pizza pan with foil. Pat dough evenly into prepared pan to within ¼ inch of edge. Bake 15 to 18 minutes at 350° until lightly browned. Cool completely. Cut in wedges. Decorate or garnish as desired. Makes 8 servings.

Medium-size refrigerator cookies: Prepare dough with chocolate chips. On waxed paper, shape into 2 rolls 1½ inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper. Cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate several hours or until firm enough to slice.
Remove rolls from refrigerator. Remove wrapping. With sharp knife, cut in slices ¼-inch wide. Place about 3 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake 8 to 10 minutes at 350° until lightly browned. Cool slightly. Remove from cookie sheet to wire rack. Cool completely. Makes about 2½ dozen (2½-inch) cookies.

Miniature cookies: Drop dough with chocolate chips. Drop dough by ¼ teaspoonful about 1½ inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Or spoon dough into disposable plastic icing bag, cut about ¼ inch off tip and squeeze batter by ¼ teaspoonful onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 8 to 7 minutes at 350°, just until set. Cool slightly. Remove from cookie sheet to wire rack. Cool completely. Makes about 18½ dozen (¾-inch) cookies.

Three-in-one chocolate peanut butter chip cookies

- 1½ cups butter or margarine, softened
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 tsp. vanilla
- 2½ cups flour
- ½ cup cocoa
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 pkg. (12 oz.) peanut butter chips

In large mixer bowl, beat together butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla. Beat well.

Combine flour, cocoa, baking soda and salt. Gradually blend into butter mixture. Stir in peanut butter chips.

Split dough in half. Shape and bake cookies into two of three versions.

Giant cookies: Line 12-inch round pizza pan with foil. Place half dough (about 3 cups) into prepared pan. Pat dough evenly to within ¼ inch of edge. Bake 15 to 18 minutes at 350°, just until set. Cool completely. Cut in wedges. Decorate or garnish as desired. Makes 8 servings.

Medium-size refrigerator cookies: Place half batter (about 3 cups) on waxed paper. Shape into 1 roll, about 2 inches in diameter and 8 inches long. Wrap in waxed paper. Cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate several hours or until firm enough to slice.

Remove roll from refrigerator. Remove wrapping. With sharp knife, cut into eight 1-inch-wide slices. Cut each slice in quarters. Place about 3 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake 8 to 10 minutes at 350° just until set. Cool slightly. Remove from cookie sheet to wire rack. Cool completely. Makes about 2½ dozen (2½-inch) cookies.

Miniature cookies: Drop half the dough (about 3 cups) by ¼ teaspoonful, about 1½ inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Or spoon dough into disposable plastic icing bag, cut about ¼ inch off tip and squeeze batter by ¼ teaspoonful onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 5 to 7 minutes at 350° just until set. Cool slightly. Remove from cookie sheet to wire rack. Cool completely. Makes about 35 dozen (¾-inch) cookies.

Parents should prepare for children's emergencies

By the Illinois State Medical Society (ISMS) in conjunction with John Meurer, MD, a Chicago pediatrician affiliated with the division of emergency pediatrics at Children's Memorial Hospital.

Injury is the leading cause of death among children. In fact, U.S. emergency rooms annually treat 10 million kids as a result of injury-related accidents.

Parents can create a safer environment for their children by taking simple preventive measures.

While traveling in a car, newborns, infants and preschool children should ride in car seats that meet Federal Motor Vehicle Safety standards. Holding a child during a car ride, even during short trips, is the most dangerous way to transport an infant.

When car seats are properly used, they can prevent about 70 percent of deaths and serious injuries. The appropriate seat depends upon the child's weight.

•From birth to 20 pounds, use an infant seat facing the rear.

•From 20 to 40 pounds, use a convertible seat facing forward.

•From 40 to 65 pounds, use a booster car seat facing forward.

•From 65 to 100 pounds, use a seat belt.

Keep all medications, common household cleaners and cosmetics, as well as other objects like plants, nuts, seeds and pins, out of a child's reach to avoid poisonings and accidents.

Last year, children under 12 accounted for more than 40,000 reported exposures to poisons in Illinois. Experts estimate that three times the number of unreported cases exist.

Set your water heater temperature lower than 125 degrees to prevent burns. Install smoke detectors, stair gates and window guards in the home to prevent children from falling.

Parents should teach older children and adolescents to look both ways before crossing the street, and to always wear automobile seat belts and approved bicycle helmets.

Parents should keep children out of contact with all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) and handguns. Adults and adolescents should also learn to administer first aid for choking and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). Training should be obtained from an instructor certified by the American Heart Association or the American Red Cross.

Keep a first aid kit containing basic medical supplies in the home to allow emergency treatment of minor injuries. The kit should contain:

•A rectal thermometer for children under 3 and an oral thermometer for those over 3 years old.

•Acetaminophen, an over-the-counter, non-aspirin pain reliever and fever-reducing drug. Aspirin use among children has been linked to Reye's syndrome, a brain and liver illness. The most commonly available acetaminophens are Tylenol, Tempra, and Liquiprin.

•Oral electrolyte solution (Pedialyte, Lytren, Resol, or Gatorade) for dehydration. These over-the-counter liquids are ideal replacement fluids, better than juices or rice water, because they contain the precise concentration of salt and sugar the body loses with vomiting or diarrhea. These solutions should not be substituted for daily nutritional intake. A physician should be consulted if the child's symptoms persist for more than one day.

•Syrup of Ipecac and the phone number of the nearest poison control center. Before administering Ipecac, contact the nearest poison control center or hospital emergency room anytime a suspected poisoning occurs. If the poison control center recommends vomiting as a therapy, Ipecac will allow prompt treatment. Parents can call any of Illinois' three main regional poison control centers in case of poisonings: For central and southern Illinois, call St. John's Hospital in Springfield at 1-800-252-2022.

•Bandages (Band Aid, Curad) for cuts, scrapes, stings or bites. Generally, gentle, thorough soap and water cleansing of minor wounds and protection of the area with a bandage is sufficient treatment. If a child has no history of allergy to topical antibiotics, such medications may be applied to prevent infection.

Call your doctor for instructions or seek prompt medical attention whenever a child has the following symptoms:

•Head injury, cuts, lacerations or bleeding.

•Unusual drowsiness, weakness or irritability.

•Severe pain, especially if associated with an injury.

•Temperature greater than 101 degrees Fahrenheit or 38.3 degrees Celsius for more than 48 to 72 hours; fever in any infant under 2 months of age.

•Blue lips, fingers or toes.

•Wheezing, earache or ear drainage.

•Repeated vomiting.

•A red, swollen, tender or draining wound.

Contraceptive methods vary with needs, desires

The following article is by Ezra C. Davidson, Jr., MD, president, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. Throughout history, finding a safe and effective form of contraception has been a concern for women. Barrier contraceptives are one of the oldest and safest still widely used forms of birth control.

The condom is the most widely used form of barrier contraceptive. Approximately 12 percent of couples in the United States who use contraceptives, use the condom, a thin rubber sheath worn by the man over his penis to prevent the release of sperm into the vagina. Condoms are inexpensive and require no medical prescription. They also help protect against the spread of sexually transmitted diseases.

Approximately three percent of women who use birth control, use the diaphragm, a thin, shallow, rubber cup that fits over the cervix, the opening to the uterus. The diaphragm is used with a spermicidal jelly or cream to act as both a physical and chemical barrier to sperm. It comes in different sizes and must be fitted by a doctor. The diaphragm can be inserted up to two hours before intercourse and must be left in place for six hours after intercourse.

Another barrier method is the vaginal sponge, which can be purchased at a drug store. The soft plastic sponge has self-contained spermicide that is released for up to 24 hours, even through several acts of intercourse.

When choosing a form of birth control, discuss all options with your doctor.

BPW district gets praise at meeting

The Fall District XIX meeting of the Illinois Federation BPW was hosted by the Gateway Business BPW at Char's Restaurant in Collinsville, with District XIV Director Pauline Langer presiding.

Following the luncheon, Sandra Scott, president-elect of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Organization, told members how proud she was of their continuing leadership and support. Illinois was the fifth largest contributor to the Diamond Jubilee Fund; trained 600 leaders for conferences; and increased dues to be able to conduct business and hold legislative conferences.

She assured members that with good programs and a stand on legislative matters, membership will not be a problem even though dues have increased.

Gayle Guthrie, second vice president of the Illinois Federation, told members she was pleased with District XIV's continuing efforts to make BPW better and was thankful for its "helping hands," especially those of Mary Rottman, secretary of IFBPW of Highland; Past State President Annellen Smith of Granite City BPW; Judy Wieman, Illinois State Headquarters Reserve Fund of Edwardsville BPW; and C. Castillo, "Project Choices of Granite City BPW Club.

Smith presented the traveling gavel to the Federated Belleville BPW Club for being the first local organization "to equalize."

Reports were made by each local president of their progress and goals for the year. Langer announced Washington County would be the auditing committee for next year.

The collect was led by Sue Urban, first associate director, and the pledge by Helen Fowler, second associate director. The welcome was given by Shirley Tapoff, president of the Gateway BPW, and the response was by Castillo, vice president of the Granite City BPW.

Slide show on Eastern Europe presented to Travelers

Thirty-two members and guests attended the October dinner meeting of Travelers Abroad held at Jerry Cafeteria. Jean Hill and Marguerite Barker won the door prizes.

Dr. Alice Purdes, president, conducted a brief business meeting and announced Barker will be in charge of the group's holiday party meeting on Monday, Nov. 26.

Members of the Charles Lexow family will present a program on Greece and the Black Sea. Dinner reservations may be made by calling Helen Lilly, treasurer.

After the guests were introduced, John Gordon presented a narrated slide program on Eastern European countries and Germany.

Gordon was on a special tour in the early fall led by a minister of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). The group toured Vienna and Salzburg, Austria; Budapest, Hungary; Prague, Czechoslovakia and numerous cities in East and West Germany, which were divided at the time.

Delays were experienced at the countries' borders, but this time it was mainly due to the number of persons wishing to cross, and not to the strict control system previous visitors encountered.

Gordon, who is retired from Southwestern Bell, made a point of taking pictures of all the different telephone booths he observed.

Particularly impressive were his slides of "The Wall" with the graffiti and the holes that have been made in it.

Along the wall on the Western side were tombstones and memorials for persons who lost their lives attempting to escape. In West Berlin the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church, connected to a damaged church remaining from World War II, was interesting as was Martin Luther's Church found in Wittenburg. There was a slide showing the church door which has the 55 Theses now done in bronze.

In Dresden, which badly needs restoration, the group visited the Zwinger Museum, noted for Raphael's Sistine Madonna. They also saw a long memorial to the Kings of Saxony in this area. Church and street scenes from Leipzig indicated that city still has scars in evidence from World War II.

In East Berlin, the group visited the famous Pergamon Museum.

um, which contains many huge Greek and Roman antiquities such as the altar and the marketgate.

Some of the largest classical architectural structures to be enclosed in a building are located there and the museum was built in 1932 especially to house them.

Also visited was the walled city of Rothenburg and Munich and ended their tour in Oberammergau where they saw the Passion Play, which is staged every 10 years. The play lasts 5½ hours with a three-hour lunch break. The theater seats 5,200 people and is generally sold out for every performance.

Guests present were: Gordon, Mrs. V.J. Collins, Dave and Myra Parrish, Joe and Madge Hanson and Col. Richard Lilly.

Members attending were: Lilli Ann Firmer, Dorothy and Waldo Frohndt, Eunice and Julieanne Hatcher, Jimmy and Martha Hayes, Joe and Jean Hill, Dorothy Hoedebeck, Elina Hoover, Marguerite Lexow, Genevieve McComis, Marge O'Neill, Anne and Mary Petroff, Charles and Eleanor Schweizer, Betty Duft, Betty Townsend, Virginia Segar and Barbara Williams.

Extension foundation committee begins annual fund-raising drive

The Madison County Extension Education Foundation Committee is beginning its annual fund-raising drive.

The committee will provide assistance for the promotion of Cooperative Extension Service educational programs. Extension offers programs in the areas of agriculture, home economics and family living, 4-H and other youth work and resource and community development and public affairs in Madison County.

Extension officials say that programs offered through the Extension Service are made available to all county residents and topics appeal to the needs and interests of both rural and urban dwellers, as well as businessmen and workers.

Although state funds are often not available to support the number and quality of programs offered in the past, more requests and needs are being expressed by county residents, the Extension said.

Women's Club holds meeting

The Nameoki Women's Club held its regular meeting Oct. 17 at the Harold Brown Building with a potluck luncheon. Mildred Jungels, Dolores Allen and Veda Norton served as hostesses. A Halloween motif was used.

The group was entertained by Michael Tarasovich, who showed a display of his art. He is a high school art student who was sent to summer art camp and was sponsored by the club.

The business meeting was conducted by Mable Gertsch, president. Following the meeting the group played Crazy Bridge. Prizes were awarded to Mildred Branding, Marian Shelton, Bernadine Cooley, Millie Meek, Dolores Allen and Marian Mertz.

Members present other than those mentioned above were Ella Wad, Irma Taylor, Lucille Tabor, Verna Stuart, Elsie Rodell, Dorothy McCauley, Doris Greve, Edna Fort, Lucille Etheridge and Ethel Beeler.

The November meeting will be held at the Brown Building with a silent auction and a household show for the Phoenix House.

The fund-raising efforts of the MCEEC are intended to help continue quality programs and services.

The initial phase of the fund drive is a mailer to county residents and some businesses. If you would like more information about donating to the Foundation or programs and services available through the Cooperative Extension Service, call the Extension Service office at 656-8400.

PUBLIC NOTICE

INVENTORY SELL-OUT

For 3 days, this Friday, November 23rd, Saturday, November 24th and Monday, November 26th, Wood River Ford will be selling out the entire 1990 and 1991 model car and truck inventories. We are forced to do this in order to earn additional factory allocations.

Not just a few select models but entire inventories of 1990 and 1991 model cars and trucks will be sold. No price leaders - no gimmicks.

All prices will be clearly posted. No reasonable offers will be refused. We will not advertise these prices, as they are so low they would disrupt business conditions of our competitors. Authorized appraisers will be on duty in order to allow top values for your trade-in. Please bring your title. Finance specialists will be on duty to arrange the lowest possible financing on these units. This is your opportunity to select the car or truck you want at a price you never thought possible. This is for retail customers only. We will not sell to dealers. Prices apply to stock units only. No order-outs can be written at these prices. There is absolutely no reason to wait for lower prices... There won't be any!

Tv today may be best, worst of times

By Ian MacBryde

It may have been the only person in the free world who did not realize that the Cheers 20th anniversary program Nov. 8 was not going to be a new episode at all, but a retrospective.

I was particularly disappointed because I knew Diane was going to be back, and I had contrived all kinds of scenarios to accommodate that development and make it work with the present state of the program and the slightly off-center folks who hang out in the bar.

Instead, cast members (including Shelley Long—Diane Chambers) sat on a stage and chatted briefly about their characters who were then featured in selected clips from the archives of the best-ever continuing TV comedy (KSDK-TV, Channel 5, Thursday, 8 p.m.).

It was good television because the program is so good but it did not bring Diane crashing back into the lives of everyone in my favorite bar with all the possibilities that suggested. It's probably just as well. I'm not sure even the incredibly talented script-writers who preside over "Cheers" could have done justice to that feat.

This raises a question. What are the best-ever television series? "The Morning Meeting," which is as close as KMOX-TV (120) radio ever gets to wackiness (not very close, incidentally) recently tried to determine the worst television programs of all time. Hosts Kevin Horgan and Charles Brennan brought in one-time columnist, full-time video expert Aaron Merminstein to help them decide. They came up with such offerings as: "Love Connection," "Love Boat," "Bionic" anything, and anything Sunday after 10 p.m.

You can, of course, argue that TV has done much worse.

But how much better? Well, a partial list might include comedies "Cheers," "MASH" and "WKRP," and dramas "St. Elsewhere," "L.A. Law," and "Hill Street Blues." You might note that all the offerings are recent. That is because from an entertainment standpoint, I think television is getting better. Unfortunately, I also think that from a journalism standpoint, it's much worse.

If you have thoughts on this, drop me a line: Ian MacBryde, St. Louis News Service, 1215 Fern Ridge Parkway, Suite 108, St. Louis, Mo. 63141.

It is a bit early to be sure, but KMOV-TV (Channel 4) seems to be making a serious move to overthrow Channel 5 as the unchallenged ratings leader in Nielsen's last month's ratings period.

One week into the important November rating period, Nielsen numbers showed Channel 4 had moved within two rating points of Channel 5 in the vital 10 p.m. newscast. Channel 5 had a 21 rating, 35 share, while Channel 4 had a 19 rating, 31 share. (Rating equals percent of homes in the market tuned to a particular program, share equals percent of homes using television tuned to a particular program.)

For the first week in November, the rating comparisons were 21 for Channel 5, 18 for Channel 4. Perhaps more significantly, last month the October ratings showed Channel 5 four rating points ahead of second-place Channel 4.

Channel 4 also showed growth in the important "women, ages 25-34" category. That demographic is the object of interest to many advertisers.

KTVI-TV (Channel 2), a station that cannot seem to get a break no matter what it does, is losing ground from an already horrible showing. For the first week in November, Channel 2 inexplicably got a five rating, nine share, apparently as a reward for eschewing the kind of leazy series that the other two stations have been running. Meanwhile, folks at Channel 4 say they are excited about other ratings developments.

Animated 'Rescuers' takes off 'down under'

A collection of great vocal characterizations, as well as an ambitious, live-action, panoramic style of animation, make "The Rescuers Down Under" (**) a likeable continuation of the series began in 1977 with "The Rescuers."

Disney Studio's 29th full-length animated feature, which is being described as Disney's first animated action-adventure film, is based on the children's stories by Margery Sharp, the retired English writer.

Set in the lonely reaches of the Australian Outback, the hero of this outdoor adventure is an 8-year-old boy named Cody. He rescues Marahute, a mysterious

IT'S BEGINNING TO LOOK A LOT LIKE CHRISTMAS ...

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

The Christmas Season is rapidly approaching, and our City is without received adverse comments from St. Louis News Media last year because of day. Season. It appears that the absence of a central organizer to bring together the parties that could provide the resources to purchase and manage spirit or interest.

Your local Chamber of Commerce and City Government are offering to be the organizer and catalyst for a fund drive to purchase decorations for the Central Downtown business district between 18th Street and 23rd Street from Madison Avenue to Cleveland Avenue.

We are proposing to purchase street banners depicting the Christmas season to be mounted on street light poles by means of a pair of steel poles would remain in place and might be useful for other seasonal celebration. It is estimated that there are 220 suitable locations in the area.

Corporations, clubs, organizations and individual citizens of Granite City will be asked to contribute to this effort as well as businesses and professions. Please indicate your level of support by purchasing one or more sets of banners and mounting brackets.

Check the appropriate number and drop in the return mail so we may be able to move forward with this project in time for this Christmas Season.

Sincerely

'Graveyard Shift' worst film of a Stephen King story

The newest film adaptation of a Stephen King story, "Graveyard Shift" (7), offers viewers a singular distinction. It is the dustiest, cheapest looking, most ridiculous adaptation of the lot.

Since "Carrie" in 1976, there have been 16 feature film adaptations of King novels and short stories made for theatrical release. "Graveyard Shift" is adapted from a short story that appeared in the King's 1978 anthology, "Night Shift."

A film called "Misery," which is based on King's novel of the same title, will be released later this year.

"Graveyard Shift" takes place in a small, ugly little town in Maine called Gates Falls. A decaying old factory called Bechman Mills is run by a menacing foreman named Warwick. The plant has a basement with a machine that processes raw cotton. It is so hot in the basement that the machine is only operated from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., hence the film's title.

In the opening scene of "Graveyard Shift," an operator of the processing machine gets shredded alive. A large rat, part of a colony that inhabits the basement, seems to push him off-balance and into the deadly bite of the machine's churning metal teeth.

Enter the film's hero, a character named John Hall, played by David Andrews. He is a guy on the run (viewers never are told why) who takes over the all-night shift operating the processing machine and eventually comes to grips with a large, unidentified monster who stalks the bowels of the factory, eating everything and everybody it can grab.

"Graveyard Shift" has an unknown cast who probably will want anonymity after seeing themselves in this hapless horror flick. The movie is bargain-basement trash, offering nothing new and made with seemingly little intent other than to cash in quick on King's reputation.

Rated R (bloodshed and violence). Running time: 95 minutes. Rating based on four stars.

Harry Hamm is entertainment editor for both KMOX-AM (4120) and the CBS Radio Network.
